

Verizon Corporation should not be granted forbearance with respect to their Broadband Services. This will prevent competitive ISPs to offer innovative services to end users and will grant Verizon a virtual monopoly, while locking handcuffing hundreds of thousands of Internet users to Verizon with virtually no viable alternatives. There is no substitute for effective competition, and we need choices of providers, services, innovations, and customer care.